DISORDERS IN MANILA OVER; RIOTS SPREAD TO PROVINCES

Filipino Agitators Are Halted By Speech Of Roxas

CHINESE INJURED

Rice Mills North Of Capital Raided By Mobs

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Oct. 21.—The rioting is apparently over. Chinese shops are beginning to reopen this morning.

What promised to be a serious situation yesterday due to publication of a canard that 80 Filipinos in Shanghai had been slain was averted by Speaker Roxas, who addressed a meeting of 10,000 Filipinos in the Botanical Garden here. Mr. Roxas branded the report as false and pleaded for the observance of order. The meeting threatened to get out of hand several times, the crowd shouting, "Burn the Chinese quarter."

The vernacular paper which published the canard has been confiscated by order of Governor-General Wood.

Later.—The anti-Chinese trouble is spreading to the provinces, judging from reports received by the Chinese Consul-General, Mr. Chow, this morning, which state that several Chinese have been wounded in rioting at Cabanatuan, 73 miles north of Manila and that rice mills belonging to Chinese firms there have been broken into and smashed.

The Burning And Looting Of The Town Of Nanziang

Upper Left Picture.—A scene along the creek in Nanziang showing household furniture thrown into the water after the looting had been completed.

Upper Right.—Ruined walls such as these are all that is left of a large section of the once thriving town of Nanziang, a few miles north of Shanghai on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. After the town had been looted by the incoming Kiangsu soldiers many of the buildings were then fired.

Lower Left.—A small part of the 5,000 women and children refugees in Nanziang who are being cared for by the Southern Methodist Mission in that place. Unless food is forthcoming at once many of these people are certain to starve since all of their property was either looted or burned by the soldiery.

U. S. OFFICIALS SEIZE SKIPPER OF ARMS SHIP

Captain Of Schooner Talbot Is Arrested After Search Of Three Months

After a search of more than three months, United States Deputy Marshal W. H. Van Buskirk yesterday afternoon arrested Captain M. H. H. Borreson, master of the American schooner W. H. Talbot, aboard which arms and ammunitions valued at approximately $50,000 were seized by Customs authorities on its arrival in Shanghai last July 4.

Captain Borreson is being held to answer a charge of importing arms and ammunition to China in violation of the American statutes in this matter. Following his arrest, bail was fixed at $10,000 Gold by Judge Milton D. Purdy in the United States Court. No date for a preliminary hearing has been set as yet but it is anticipated that Borreson's attornies will ask an early trial. In the meantime, he is being held in the American jail.

The man, for whom the American authorities have been looking ever since the seizure by the Customs, was found by Deputy Marshal Van Buskirk in a local hotel room. He had been at the hotel for the past three days, but had been registered under the fictitious name of M. Peterson. It is believed that he had been at Nanking.

The arms seizure aboard the Talbot was one of the largest made by the Customs here during the past few years. The vessel is still being held here by the Customs authorities.

Soldiers Loot In Chapei; One Seized

The local vernacular press reports that looting broke out in the Wong Ka Zah (Chapei) on Sunday and that many houses were entered by a band of soldiers who removed everything of value that was portable. A police constable on duty nearby was notified by one of the victims. As he approached the scene the soldiers fled, but one of their number was arrested and is being held for trial by the Chinese authorities.

GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY FALLS; PLAN ELECTIONS

President Ebert Consents To Dissolution Of The Reichstag

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 20.—On the Government's recommendation, President Ebert has consented to dissolve the Reichstag.

The decision to hold elections has been prompted by the attitude of the Democrats, who refuse to participate in a Government in which Nationalists are represented.

The official decree attributes the necessity for the dissolution to the failure of the Chancellor's efforts to extend the present Government in order to create a reliable majority.

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 20.—The last German elections were only held in May, and the Marx Cabinet has been in office since November. The new election will probably be held on November 23. It is anticipated that the Republican parties will occupy a stronger position in the new Reichstag.

MANY PRISONERS AT LUNGHWA ARE MISSING, REPORT

Slayer Of Hsu Kuo-liang No Longer There, Check Of Records Shows

Scores of prisoners who had been held at the yamen at Lunghwa, including the confessed slayer of General Hsu Kuo-liang, whose assassination here last winter while chief of the Woosung and Shanghai Constabulary was one of the sore points between Kiangsu and Chekiang, are now missing, according to the Chinese press.

Vernacular newspapers report that immediately upon his taking over the yamen at Lunghwa General Chang Yung-ming, commanding the Hupeh troops, who were the first northerners to enter Shanghai, ordered a check on the list of prisoners who were supposed to be at the yamen. The results of this check, it is said, revealed that scores were missing, many of them being men who had been held for major offenses. Inquiry is said to have revealed that the gates were opened for them by the warders at Lunghwa following the flight of Tupan Lu Yung-hsiang and General Ho Feng-lin to Japan.

Wu Is Better Strategist, Chang Is Better Equipped In Battle At Shanhaikwan

Reinforcements Rushed Up By Chihli Leader To Chu Men Region Balk Attempts Of Fengtien Armies To Strike At Chinwangtao

BY LAWRENCE IMPEY

(Correspondent for THE CHINA PRESS with the Chihli forces at Shanhaikwan).

Shanhaikwan, Oct. 16.—It is five days since your correspondent left Peking on Marshal Wu Pei-fu's headquarters train for the Shanhaikwan front. At Tongshan we passed a hospital train full of wounded, and noted the Red Cross flag on the Kailan Mining Administration buildings, and when the train stopped at the station quite a deputation of civilians were present to be received by the Generalissimo. From Tongshan, onward the journey was uneventful and Shanhaikwan was reached in the small hours of the morning, very few of us being awake at the moment of arrival. The writer got out of the coupe in time to find that Marshal Wu Pei-fu had departed from his carriage for the front line at once and that no one seemed to know what would happen next. The problem was solved by the bursting of a couple of shells just to the right of the train, sixty yards to the north and a couple of hundred feet up were the little puffs that indicate shrapnel, and the train hastily shunted back half a mile and after a brief pause for consultation the staff decided to withdraw it to Chinwangtao.

FIGHT IN HILLS

During the days previous to our arrival at the front there had been bitter hand to hand fighting in the hills to the north of Shanhaikwan, and the passes around Chu Men had been captured by the Fengtien troops. The Chihli forces had suffered severely and had been compelled to retire more than thirty li, though a counter attack had regained some ten li of this at a heavy cost in dead and wounded. The fighting on the direct front had been desultory during this period, for Chang Tso-lin was evidently making his strongest effort in the Chu Men region so as to outflank and threaten Chinwangtao and the lines of communication. Marshal Wu grasped the situation immediately and rushed up supports to Shihmenchai by the light railway from Chinwangtao, directing the operations himself and accompanying his attack with a heavy artillery bombardment. The line was stabilised and the enemy pushed back to Chahochai after a day's heavy fighting, wounded coming in to Chinwangtao in large numbers all the time. Unfortunately Wu Pei-fu transferred his attentions to another

Epidemic Of Robberies Laid To Soldiery; Three More Reported

Cynical-minded members of the community yesterday inclined to the belief that the war in the vicinity of Shanghai had not ended but that the soldiery had merely transferred their activities to within the Settlement borders despite every precaution taken by Settlement defense forces to keep them and their arms out. In proof of their assertion they pointed to the rapidly growing list of armed robberies in Settlement territory, many of which, undoubtedly, have been committed by former soldiers or with arms supplied by former soldiers.

Three more robberies appeared in the police records yesterday. In one of them, a woman and a man suffered slight stab wounds when they refused to reveal the hiding place of their valuables.

The proprietor of a rice shop at 511 Miller Road reported to the police of the Hongkew station that at 6:30 o'clock Monday night five men, two of them armed with pistols, entered the place, intimidated the seven occupants and escaped with $14 in money and clothing. No shots were fired. All of the men escaped.

Another armed robbery in which the loot was $116 in cash was reported by the proprietor of a cigarette and exchange shop at 476-7 North Fokien Road to police of the West Hongkew station. Six men, two of them armed with pistols, appeared at the front door of the shop. Three

OPIUM CHARGES HURLED IN U. S. COURT ACTION

Ship's Captain Is Faced With Counter-Claim In Suit For Breach Of Contract

Allegations that a captain, who claims that he was wrongfully dismissed by his employers, had indulged in opium smuggling and had entertained questionable characters on board the ship of which he had charge, were made yesterday in the United States Court for China before Judge Milton D. Purdy, when L. C. Wilbur sued the American Chinese Steam Navigation Co., Inc. to recover Mex. $3,314.64 damages for breach of contract of employment. The statement of claim stated that the defendants had engaged the plaintiff as chief officer of the s.s. Tai Jen for two months at $350 per month, after which he was to be promoted to captain of the same vessel at $750 per month for the term of one year, and that on August 22 of this year he was wrongfully discharged.

In their answer the defendants claimed that the agreement upon

S.V.C. Demobilised After Eight Days Of Guard Duty

For the first time in eight days, authorities in charge of the defense of the International Settlement breathed a bit more easily yesterday and after a thorough study of the local situation decided that partial relaxation of the rigorous watch which has been maintained day and night throughout this time might be effected without endangering the interests of the foreign community. As a result, orders were issued at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon for the demobilisation of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, although one company will be held on duty each night as a reserve force to cope with any emergency which may arise.

Other units of the Settlement defense forces, which include the allied naval detachments ashore and the police, are still on guard, and, under the changed circumstances of Monday and yesterday, since the settlement with the defeated Chekiang troops, it was felt that the members of the Volunteer Corps might be released in order to permit them to return to civilian life.

SPLENDID SERVICE

Disbandment of the Volunteer Corps completes another splendid chapter of service to the community which will be added to the many already on the records of the Corps. From the outset of the difficulties between Chekiang and Kiangsu, the Volunteer Corps has held itself in constant readiness to assist in defense of the Settlement. On September 9, after Kiangsu forces had pushed back the Chekiang armies guarding the approaches to Shanghai, and when defeat of the Chekiang forces in the field and a subsequent retreat to the Settlement limits seemed not improbable, the full corps was mobilised and was held under arms for a period of days.

As the Chekiang troops rallied, however, and withstood the assaults of their opponents, the need for maintaining the Volunteers on guard lessened, and partial demobilisation was ordered. For some time, ten men from each company were kept on duty constantly, with all arrangements made for complete mobilisation of the Corps whenever danger again threatened. Later, this reserve force was released, but with the flight of Tupan Lu Yung-hsiang

Capture Chiaoshanssu Despite Stubborn Resistance

(Nihon Dempo)

Peking, Oct. 21.—In view of the unfavorable position of the Chihli army at Shanhaikwan, Marshal Wu Pei-fu yesterday sent a telegram to President Tsao Kun, intimating his intention of retreating to Luanchow.

President Tsao Kun, in his reply, instructed that, as the abandonment at this moment of Shanhaikwan would badly affect the morale of Chihli fighters as well as cause great uneasiness among people in Peking, Marshal Wu should withstand the Fengtien attacks there at any cost or be completely defeated.

From this, it is to be imagined that the occupation of [illegible] is impossible.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 20.—Notwithstanding gallant resistance on the part of the Chihli forces on the 19th instant, the stronghold of Chiaoshanssu was re-captured by the Fengtien troops, and part of the 2nd Shensi Division at the fronts of Shihmensai and Shahosai was disarmed by the Fengtien troops.

In the recent battle, General Chin Chih-king, Commander of the Shensi Division, is reported to have been killed.

The Fengtien troops, which have made a drive in the direction of Haiyangchin, are under the command of General Chang Tsun-chang, and are equipped with many field-guns. Against the attack by these Fengtien forces, the 14th Chihli Division, commanded by General Chin Yun-e, is now desperately defending itself with utmost bravery.

Two mixed brigades of Chihli reserves have been rushed up to Chinwangtao.

Restoration Of Rail Service To Nanking Delayed

Special Train Turned Back At Chenju By Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan

Fairly complete restoration of train service on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway is expected by Sunday or Monday, officials at the Shanghai North Station indicated last night.

One special train was sent out yesterday afternoon but was forced to return to the station when it was turned back at Chenju by Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, commander of the Kiangsu forces.

Other specials may be sent out today in an attempt to get through but this was not certain last night.

The station was active during yesterday with the arrival and departure of four or five troop trains. The trains did the usual switching, giving soldiers an opportunity to stretch their legs, and then departed again.

M. L. Woo took over his appointive duties as acting managing director of the road yesterday.

Several problems will have to be met before service is restored. The locomotives are scattered along the entire route. Rolling stock is mixed in with rolling stock of the Tientsin line. These cars will have to be separated before [illegible] is possible. Very little damage has been done to the cars, it was said.

NEW THREAT TO SEIZE CUSTOMS SEEN AT CANTON

Local Government Will Defy Powers, Says Report From South

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, October 20.—It is reported in Chinese circles here that the controvery between the Government and the Merchants' Volunteer Corps having been settled, the Canton authorities as a result of their discussion have come to a decision to seize the Customs House in Canton within the next ten days, and that if this scheme should prove a failure, they have under consideration a plan to establish another Customs House under the control of the Canton Government.

In case any complications with the Consular Body here arise, the Canton Government, it is understood, is determined to put its scheme in force even by resorting to force of arms. Seventy Sikh soldiers, who have been despatched by the Hongkong Administration in view of the gravity of the situation in Shameen, arrived here this morning and immediately took up duties to guard the foreign settlement.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, October 20.—Yesterday, Mr. Hu Han-min, Civil Governor of Kwangtung, issued a notification to commanders of all the Government mercenaries, asking them to extend protection to merchant volunteers in local districts, now that the merchant volunteers in Canton and Fatshan have already been disarmed and that the rural volunteers have nothing to do with the recent incident.

Southern Troops Invading Kiangsi

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 17.—According to information derived from military circles, General Tsai Cheng-hsun, Tuli of Kiangsi, reports that southern troops under the command of General Fan Chung-siao have invaded the southern border of the province at Suaichuan. General Fong Peng-yin has left for Suaichuan with a division to suppress the rebels. General Tsai requests the Government to give instructions for the Kiangsi troops in Kiangsu to return to Kiangsi.

"LITTLE HSU" LEAVES FOR LONDON ON BRITISH SHIP

Follows Instructions Of Diplomatic Corps, Report

TROOPS ENLIST

Ex-Chekiang Soldiers Join Fukien And Kiangsu

Yesterday's political developments summarised:

Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, after staying in Shanghai for three days, left for Hangchow by a river boat yesterday morning.

Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan's arrival in Shanghai was expected yesterday, but up to a late hour there was no sign of his appearance.

The North Station, after being the scene of concentrated troops movements, returned to normalcy yesterday, following the re-enlistment of most of the soldiers of the former Chekiang Army by Fukien, Kiangsu and Hupeh military authorities.

General Hsu Shu-tseng, commonly known as "Little Hsu," who was placed under police surveillance on account of his activities with the defeated Chekiang army, sailed for London yesterday in accordance with instructions, it is understood, from the Diplomatic Corps in Peking. He is accompanied by a Mr. Soong, who will act as his interpreter. Hsu will proceed to Paris after arriving in London, and is traveling on a tourist passport.

Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, commander-in-chief of the Kiangsu troops, capturers of Shanghai after a month and a half of battle, failed to do his "conquering hero" stuff yesterday, although an audience of several thousand milled in and about the Shanghai North Station from early morning until after dark last night.

He was delayed at Chenju, his headquarters, five miles north of Shanghai, by personal affairs, railroad officials said.

It was not known at the Shanghai North Railroad Station last night just when Marshal Chi would come into Shanghai but indications were that he would arrive within two days.

The station was placed under guard of Kiangsu troops shortly after 12 o'clock noon yesterday. Guards were placed at various entrances and four machine guns were erected, ready for instant use. The guns were trained on Track Three, the main line.

The machine guns, however, were removed shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Guards remained at the entrances and along the high fences.

Several high ranking officials of Marshal Chi's personal staff inspected the guard and looked over conditions during the afternoon.

Police of the station were drawn up in formation several times outside the station entrance when reports came in that Marshal Chi was approaching, but each report proved a false alarm.

Details of the disposal of the surrendered Chekiang troops in accordance with the agreements reached on Monday were made available yesterday.

The fourth division, formerly under Chen Yao-shan, went to Sungkiang, Fengking, Kashing and other places after being incorporated into the army of Sun Chuan-fang.

The Tenth division, formerly under Lu Yung-hsiang was placed under the command of Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan through his representative and Acting Defence Commissioner of Shanghai and Sungkiang, General Bei Pao-shan. This was transferred to Kiangwan yesterday and is being stationed at the Industrial Home and the Race Course.

The sixth Mixed Brigade formerly under Ho Feng-lin became a part of the Chekiang Army under Sun Chuan-fang.

The 9,000-odd Fukien troops formerly headed by Chwang Tse-ping joined the Hupeh brigade under Chang Yung-ming, who entered Shanghai before any of the other victorious leaders, and are now in Lunghua.

The remnants of Yang Hua-chuo's braves, about 3,000 strong, were re-enlisted in the sixth division under Chi Hsieh-yuan.

Other miscellaneous forces were also divided up by Bei, Chang and Sun. Only a few were willing to be disarmed and shipped back to Shantung, while a small number is still left at the North Station, which will be guarded by the forces of Bei Pao-shan, whose appointment by Marshal Chi as Acting Defence Commissioner of Sungkiang and Shanghai was gazetted yesterday.

General Chang Yung-ming, the Hupeh leader, was ordered to march his forces to the North and participate in the Chihli-Mukden War in a telegram from Marshal Wu Pei-fu yesterday. Chang's departure could not be ascertained as yet.

Before leaving Shanghai, Marshal Sun issued the following statement:

"I am thankful to those who advised and assisted me during my sojourn in Shanghai. The question of rehabilitation was settled yesterday and carried out satisfactorily by me through the cooperation of Marshal Chi's Chief of Staff, Liu. The various units of troops have been despatched to different places for garrison duties and the status quo of Shanghai and Woosung has been restored. I am leaving for Hangchow immediately and in my hurry, I am afraid I shall not be able to bid you good-bye. Through this statement, I wish not only to express my appreciation for your help but to invite any further suggestions which you might be good enough to make in the future."

Marshal Sun's body-guards of two battalions left with him at the same time. The Fukien forces which are stationed near the Hungjao Road Airdrome will return to Chekiang today and tomorrow, more than 100 junks having been hired to ship them to Hangchow and vicinity.

Because of the absence of three of the trustees of the Chapei Electric and Water Works, the deposit of $1,100,000 could not be used as security for the Tls. 200,000 advanced by the local Chinese Chambers to Sun Chuan-fang, it was learned yesterday. The trustees asserted that the money, in accordance with the rules of the company which is taking over the works, could not be used for military purposes and can only be released by the unanimously consent of the nine trustees. Of these, three are not in Shanghai. Mr. Sung Han-chang is sick and confined in a hospital. Mr. Soo Ming-sung is in Nanking and Mr. Shen Shih-tsai is in Peking.

Of the six members who are here, opinion is not at all unanimous. Dr. Huang Yen-pei vigorously opposes the action on the ground that the money has already been pledged by the province for educational purposes.

It is understood that because of this difficulty, Governor Han Kuo-chun of Kiangsu is expected to come here shortly in an attempt to clear up the situation.

General Chi Hsieh-yuan issued a proclamation yesterday and urged the people to go back to their homes and resume their trade. In this, he also stated that he would be in Shanghai shortly to pacify the minds of the public.

Sun Chuan-fang Leaves Troops At Arsenal On Departure From Shanghai

Fukien Leader Starts For Sungkiang By Boat, Accompanied By Members Of His Staff; Holds Telephone Conversation With Tuchun Chi

BY D. J. LEWIS

Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, Inspector General of Fukieu and Chekiang Provinces departed today at eleven from his headquarters at the Vocational Educational Institute in the native city for Nantao where he took a launch for Sungkiang. General Sun was accompanied by members of his staff, but without his usual bodyguard. His chief-of-staff is still in Shanghai having removed late yesterday afternoon to Y. P. S. hotel on Thibet Road in the International Settlement. A member of General Sun's staff informed me that his departure is due to urgent telegrams received from the Hangchow Chamber of Commerce requesting his immediate presence to restore peace and order in Chekiang Province. Trains for regular passenger traffic will be started tomorrow from Shanghai South but for the present will only run to Sungkiang.

The Shanghai-Nanking Railway Station (Shanghai North) seems deserted, the Chekiang soldiers having departed and taken with them their collection of field pieces, army mules and other equipment. The station is now guarded by General Bei Bao-san's troops. Orders have been issued by Marshal Chi that three troop trains be despatched early today to Chenju to evacuate his troops immediately to Nanking.

A special train was prepared for Marshal Chi to proceed to Shanghai having been sent down the line at 4 p.m. today. This train returned to Shanghai with Mr. R. J. Glendinning, chief traffic inspector of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway who has been, since the beginning of the war, attached to Marshal Chi's end of the line. The Marshal however is still at Chenju and did not arrive yesterday as announced. A visit made at the new office of the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at the end of Route Ghisi indicated that the attendants had received instructions to prepare the premises for an extended stay for Marshal Chi and his bodyguard but here too no signs of either the bodyguard or the Marshal were in evidence. They state there that Mr. S. T. Wen, the new commissioner has not as yet moved to these quarters.

By using the telephone a personal interview between the two Marshals, Chi and Sun, was arranged and they exchanged the usual Chinese courtesies and transacted considerable business by long-distance conversation. At the Shanghai South station 3,000 members of General Ho's former division are now incorporated in Marshal Sun's forces and will proceed for Sungkiang this morning.

Calling at the Lunghwa yamen I was informed that General Chang Yuen-ming was absent in Shanghai attending an important conference. These premises are still guarded by troops of the 5th Hupeh Division.

The Arsenal adjoining the Kiangnan Dock I found there located the 2,000 soldiers belonging to Marshal Sun which have not as yet left Shanghai. It is quite evident that Marshal Sun is willing to accede everything else in this area to Marshal Chi but the Arsenal is the one prize he desires very much to control.

Both sides are very anxious to obtain the privilege of naming the new defense commissioner of the Sungkiang-Shanghai District for their respective candidates. This is a rather difficult matter to handle, since Marshal Sun would like to see Lu Shiang-ting appointed and Marshal Chi of course wants General Bei Bao-san appointed. General Bei still maintains his headquarters at the Liu Yung Private School in the native city but it is rumored that General Chang's troops will shortly be shifted from Lunghwa and General Bei will probably take up his residence there.

Although official instructions have been issued to the Shanghai Magistrate to make the necessary preparations to receive Marshal Chi it is stated that he will not make any effort to actually proceed to Shanghai until all of Marshal Sun's troops have left Shanghai.

"Mignon"

The opera selected last night by the management of the Italian Opera Company and the manner of its presentation warranted a far larger audience than was present at the Olympic Theater. "Mignon" has perhaps come to be regarded as one of the less conventional operas from the viewpoint of the public, yet there is no good reason why this should be so since it has some of the most exquisite music in the entire range of opera. And when the fullest justice is done to this music, as was the case last night, the result is a genuine artistic treat.

The title role last night was entrusted to Mlle. Pinna Minotti, who added to the laurels which she gained in the part of Carmen a few nights ago. Mlle. Pinotti happily combines three qualities which do not always go together in the average operatic artiste—a fine voice, superb acting and a pleasing personality. Mlle. Pinotti has all of these qualities in a conspicuous degree and consequently she is always convincing, and makes a deep impression on her audiences. A better Mignon could scarcely have been desired. Her whimsical communion with a mirror in the second act was particularly good, for which she was recalled, and she also had to reappear in the concluding act. Mlle. Ena. Surinach was a captivating Filina and sang exceedingly well. Sig. Giletta played and sang effectively as Wilhelm, while the important part of Lothario was in the capable hands of Sig. Milocchi. Sig. Paterna was in his element as Laertes the actor.

The evening was a most satisfying one from the standpoint of artistic merit, although it must have been not a little discouraging to the management from the viewpoint of support.

Japanese Reporters, Seized By Kiangsu, Will Gain Freedom

According to a telegram received in Shanghai yesterday from Nanking, the reporter for a local Japanese newspaper and the Japanese newspaper correspondent who accompanied him on his tour of the battlefields, both of whom have been held in custody by the Kiangsu military officials at Nanking since the early days of the Kiangsu-Chekiang war, expect to be released and to return to Shanghai within two or three days.

The two men went out to Liuho early in September to inspect the battle lines there for their newspapers. Ignorant of the locations of the opposing forces, they wandered through the Chekiang lines and into the Kiangsu lines. They were apprehended by Kiangsu troops and held on suspicion of being spies. Efforts made to obtain their release proved futile, Tuchun Chi Hsieh-yuan ruling that they must remain in custody until the termination of the war.

reinforcements to Chinwangtao to protect Japanese residents there, Marshal Wu Pei-fu has approached the Commander of the Japanese Garrison in Chinwangtao, asking the latter to wire to the Japanese Government to postpone the despatch of any Japanese Garrisons. In reply, the Japanese Commander is said to have told Marshal Wu that inasmuch as prevailing opinion in Japan favor the despatch of reinforcements to Chinwangtao because of the ill-feeling entertained by the Chihli troops against Japanese residents, Marshal Wu is requested to caution the officers and men under his command so that the cause for the despatch of Japanese reinforcements to Chinwangtao may be eliminated.

Peking, Oct. 20.—A despatch dated Chinwangtao October 19 reports:

Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who has been daily making a round of inspection of the fronts, today proceeded in the direction of Erhlangmiao. The Honan and Shensi reinforcements are constantly arriving in Chinwangtao from Peitaiho. The cold weather is considerably affecting the movements of the opposing forces.

remained on guard at the door, while the other three looted the cash drawer after intimidating the five shop assistants who were in the place at the time. Then all six fled east on Tsepoo Road and escaped.

The third armed robbery report was made to Yangtszepoo station. Six men, three of them armed with revolvers, entered a house on Lay Road. One of the men stood on guard at the door, while the others ransacked the four dwelling rooms within. In one of the rooms were a Chinese man and woman. Three of the robbers entered the room and demanded that the occupants reveal where they had their valuables hidden. When the man and woman refused, the robbers became enraged and slashed out at them with their knives. The woman was wounded on the left wrist and the man on the left hand. In all, the robbers managed to gather $290 in money, clothes and jewellery after a thorough search of the place, and then ran out, escaping down Rangoon Road.

from Hangchow to Shanghai on September 18, mobilisation of the full strength of the Corps was again ordered and the men were assigned to their prearranged posts. With the menace of an immediate retreat on Shanghai again lifted, however, partial demobilisation was ordered a second time.

HALT DESERTERS

The third mobilisation of the entire Corps was carried out on Monday of last week, following the flight of Tupan Lu and General Ho Feng-lin to Japan. Since that time, the Corps has been on duty constantly, guarding the borders of the Settlement. The district assigned them to the North of the Settlement and in the vicinity of the railway station was perhaps the most important of all points on the Settlement borders. Posts were established at the railway station, the Mixed Court, the Elgin Road School, the Thibet Road Bridge, and Markham Road, and patrols were on duty night and day. As a result of the vigilance of the Volunteers, many Chekiang deserters were foiled in their attempts to enter the Settlement, and a number were arrested in possession of arms or loot.

No woman could possibly be comfortable in the same room with the man she loved and the Vampire in "A Fool There Was." See the reason why when the famous Fox picture plays at the Isis Theatre beginning Sunday.

PEKING DENIES BANDIT RAID ON LUNG-HAI TRAIN

Denial Also Given To Report Of Attack On British Rail Official

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 16.—Reuter's Agency is requested by the Ministry of Communications to state that while it is true that an obstruction placed on the line near Kueitehfu, Honan, caused an engine to leave the rails, no bandits appeared after the mishap and no foreigners or Chinese were taken into captivity.

An official denial is also given by the Ministry of Communications to the report that a British official of the Peking-Mukden Railway was fired on and wounded by a Chinese officer on October 14.

The report said that a strong protest would be lodged by the British Minister, but the British Legation at noon today had received no report of such an occurrence. The report appears to have been a complete fabrication.

TRAINS IRREGULAR

(Special Correspondence)

Kaifeng, Oct. 17.—The Lunghai Railroad was cut near the town of Kweiteh, about three hours to the east of Kaifeng and as a result all train service was suspended for three days this week. Bandits are supposed to have been responsible for the work.

General Chang Fu-lai, Tuli of Honan Province, has moved his headquarters to Paotingfu in order to guard the Peking-Hankow Railway during the present trouble. Trains are very irregular on all the railroads in this part of China, the trouble being due to troop transportation.

There has been a heavy rain here with a sleet storm which should assure this district of a good grain crop next Spring.

The Battle Lines In The North

attack that had developed at Santaokwan and which had broken through on a six li front to a depth of several li.

Although this point was secured and the Fengtien troops held up, the absence of the supreme command from the vital point at Chu Men was most unfortunate at this critical moment, for a fresh supply of Chang Tso-lin's reserves pushed up and threw the Chihli forces out of Shihmenchai for the second time, at one time getting within ten miles of headquarters at Chinwangtao station. The writer was able to deduce this at first by the sudden appearance of machine guns on guard round the station, and from the despatch of mounted infantry towards the west in such haste that they took neither food nor bedding with them. At the same time engines were switched on to the trains in the sidings, all pointing to the south, and General Tsao Ying, a brother of the President, took up an excellent strategical position in his coach on the main line for Tientsin. The firing was very plainly heard during the whole of the thirteenth and part of the fourteenth, growing fainter the following day, either from a movement in position or from a change in the direction of the wind.

COAST IS SHELLED

It was obviously of vital importance for the Chihli troops to regain the Chu Men passes, for as long as they were held by the Fengtien forces no advance on the direct line from Shanhaikwan towards Mukden would be of any value. Thus it was that all the men and materials arriving from the south were being poured up to Shihmenchai, while Wu himself had made a sudden journey down to Chinwangtao harbor and boarded the Hai Che, the Chinese cruiser lying there. With the support of two gunboats a demonstration was made at Hulutao on the night of the fourteenth at which the Marshal was present, the coast being shelled and Chang's troops replying with some light artillery. As it was known that a number of Chihli troops had shipped from Tientsin the previous day the Fengtien staff doubtless apprehended an attempt at a landing, and it may be that this fear led them to weaken their drive at Chu Men. If this was Wu's intention it was strategy of a high order and gained him a needed respite, during which fresh troops arrived by boat and rail at Chinwangtao and were hurried up to reinforce the weakest spots at Santaokwan and Shihmenchai.

That the staff were apprehensive, however, was evidenced by their reluctance to talk and the entire lack of real information, while the unfortunate war correspondents and military observers wandered about the headquarters picking up what crumbs of news might chance their way. The congestion on the main line and the sidings at Chinwangtao was still very considerable in spite of the labors of Monsieur Peretti, the director of traffic to the Marshal's staff, and on the afternoon of the fifteenth everyone was greatly excited by the news that an International Train was due shortly in order to clear the line to the sea in compliance with the Protocol of 1901. The train, with its festoon of allied flags, pulled in to Chinwangtao station about five o'clock and after some delay obtained a clear line for Shanhaikwan, leaving on the ten mile run at quarter to seven and arriving at its destination at eight o'clock. A stop was made here for three hours, and the writer, who had come up with the allied troops, was enabled to wander about the town and view the results of a month's war.

SHANHAIKWAN DESERTED

The population appeared to have cleared out to a great extent, many of the shops and buildings being occupied by soldiers, but the actual damage done seemed to be comparatively slight, the shelling and bombing so graphically described in the press not having been very lucky in its effect. Several of the shell holes in the neighborhood of the station were plainly visible, but as at Chinwangtao they had just missed hitting vital points, the locomotive sheds having had narrow escapes in both instances. The bombs seen by the writer were too small to be of much use and the planes keep far too high for the aviators to be able to estimate their mark satisfactorily, though it has been suggested that one reason for avoidance of heavy bombing or shelling is that Chang Tso-lin hopes to use the lines and rolling stock himself in the near future and wishes to avoid great damage to them. The writer walked up the railway tracks from the station at Shanhaikwan in a brilliant moonlight, passing several shell holes en route caused by the strafe of the previous night, and eventually arrived without incident at the Great Wall.

Three li north lay the Chihli forward lines beyond which could be observed the occasional flash of a gun, but for the most part the night in the immediate vicinity was peaceful, only the distant mutter of artillery from over the mountains at Chu Men and Shihmenchai betraying the struggle that was proceeding. After the three hours' pause the train reversed for Peking, taking several of the correspondents and military observers with it, they intending to switch round and have a look at other fronts. The contest on this front is so evenly balanced that it is difficult to say who will win, Marshal Wu being the best strategist and leader, but Chang Tso-lin possessing by far the best equipment and artillery. In the opinion that the decisive result must be attained on this front the writer dropped off the train at Chinwangtao and rejoined the staff train there at midnight.

JEWETT SPECIAL
A Thrifty Six Built by Paige

Built Right from Tyre to Hood

THERE is more to building a motor car than only the will to do so. It takes knowledge, experience and time, and only after years of experience by superior Paige engineers was the improved type of gear box and clutch brought to its present state of perfection in the Jewett.

In addition to the pleasure derived from the smoothness in operation, it prolongs the life of the gears—a true form of economy. Clashing and jarring sounds are invariably warnings that the entire mechanism is out of tune and is a sure sign that one unit is wearing on another.

Just jump into the driver's seat and see what it means to operate the gears of a Jewett. Space will not allow a full description. However, this motor car is here to graphically tell its story.

JEWETT SPECIFICATIONS:

Opium Charges Hurled In U. S. Court Action

which the plaintiff had been engaged had been altered by verbal agreements between the parties, and as a counterclaim urged that plaintiff threugh carelessness, inefficiency nd insubordination and unlawful conduct, while acting as captain of the Tai Jen, had damaged the defendants to the extent of Mex. $5,000 for which sum they asked judgment

Mr. F. J. Schuhl appeared for the plaintiff and Major C. P. Holcomb or the defendant.

The hearing yesterday was for the purpose of taking the evidence of two witnesses for the defence out of turn owing to their near departure for Chekiang.

81 CASES OF OPIUM

Tsen Teh-han, compradore of the ss. Tai Jen said that on the first trip which the plaintiff took from Chungking as captain of the vessel, he took on board at Wanhsien no fewer than 81 cases of opium. The money received for transporting the cargo was shared between the captain and various of the Chinese on the ship, witness receiving as his share $140. He did not keep the money but handed it over to the company with a report of what had occurred. The opium was discharged from the Tai Jen into sampans at a spot sixty li above Ichang.

Witness also stated that the plaintiff had entertained unfortunates on the boat with the result that respectable families now refused to travel on it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Schuhl witness said that he had had some trouble with the plaintiff.

Didn't he discharge you because you were squeezing, and smuggling opium and copper coins into non-treaty ports? He said so. To whom did he report me?

Witness admitted that he was a shareholder in the defendant company to the extent of about $7,000 the first cook on the ship was also a shareholder, but witness denied that the No. 1 coolie also had shares in the company. Sixty percent of the shares were held by Dr. McCartney, but he was no longer with the company.

CHARGES BRIBERY

Witness did not know whether the plaintiff had reported to the company that he, witness, was responsible for smuggling the opium. He further stated that at the time the opium was being loaded on board there was a Customs officer in the captain's cabin. He sat there awhile and talked and when he left the ship he got several hundreds of dollars.

Mr. Schuhl.—Did you see the aptain give the customs officer everal hundreds of dollars?—No, I did not see, but I heard this.

According to witness, the captain got $500 out of the transaction. Witness did not see him get it, but he was told the steward gave it to him.

Witness was discharged from the ship by the plaintiff on the fourth trip which the latter made, but since then witness had again been engaged on the vessel, which was now of Italian registry.

Cheng Tsz-yuen, agent at Suifu for the vessel, gave evidence that he had seen the captain pay $20 to an unfortunate on the ship, but later admitted he had only been told about the transaction.

EPINARD INJURED IN LAST RACE; TO RETIRE FROM TURF

Famous French Colt Hurt At Close Of American Trip; Big Offer Declined

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Oct. 20.—Epinard will return to France in a fortnight. It injured its quarter in a race on Saturday and will not be able to race again this year.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Oct. 20.—M. Pierre Wertheimer announces that owing to its injury Epinard will not race again but will be sent to a stud in France.

M. Wertheimer has declined an offer of $300,000 for Epinard from American turf interests.

The splendid French racer Epinard, brought to America with the confidence that it would repeat there its victories in its homeland, has been defeated three times in the races it has run in the States. Great crowds turned out to see the thoroughbred, but the American racers he was matched with, Sarazen, Ladkin, Wise Counsellor, and others, were fully up to his standard.

The matter was not wholly of speed, however, but of jockeys. In Epinard's race on the Aqueduct Course of the Queens County Jockey Club on September 27, he lost by a nose to Major August Belmont's Ladkin, ridden by Clarence Kummer, in one of the most brilliant and thrilling contests of thoroughreds seen in a generation. Ladkin won the race (one mile) in 1.36 2-5, two-fifths of a second slower than the record for the course.

This race, the second International Special, was an example of the unsuccessful riding largely responsible for the French racer's defeat. Epinard was undoubtedly the best of the six horses entered, and in the opinon of export horsemen would have been the winner in the hands of a Sande, or indeed any one of the first half-dozen leaders among the jockeys now riding in the United States. Haynes, Epinard's jockey, is not one of the very highest order, however and was not considered a first-class rider in America before he went to France. He is held in the highest esteem, however, by his employer. Many horsemen would have liked to have seen the race rerun with a Kummer, an O'Donnell, or a Fator up on the French colt. Haynes was at fault in his judgment. He made his first mistake when he had a clear field on the backstretch in not letting his mount step along and make the running.

When Wise Counsellor came up and then Ladkin, Haynes still had room on the rail. Instead of holding it, however, he chose to take up. And then he made another error of judgment by taking up too much. He did it smoothly, but instead of swinging out close behind the flying leaders he delayed too long, and it cost him something like four lengths before he was ready to go around the others. Then in the homestretch, when he had the whole track to himself, he delayed his drive too long, and though he was climbing over Ladkin at the end and would have won in another jump, he had waited just a bit too long.

In the first of the three International Specials in America Epinard was beaten by Wise Counsellor, at Belmont Park on Labor Day. In the second race he lost by a nose to Ladkin, as described above. In the third special on October 11, he was defeated by Sarazen, this race being one of ten furlongs over the course at Latonia, Ky.

SOLDIERS OFFER HUMAN HAZARDS ON GOLF LINKS

Surrendered Chekiang Forces At Kiangwan Evince Great Interest

Members of the Shanghai Golf Club who reasoned that now that the war is all over, at least as far as Shanghai is concerned, they ought to lose as little time as possible in seeing how far they had fallen off their game during the forced abstinence of the past few weeks found an enthusiastic gallery and innumerable new hazards all over the Kiangwan course when they attempted to resume play there yesterday.

Parked in the Race Club stands were at least a thousand of the surrendered Chekiang soldiers, most of whom, apparently, had conceived the notion that the stands were as comfortable a place as any offered at the present moment for a temporary home, and had accordingly dragged in great quantities of straw and prepared beds for themselves on the concrete steps.

With the appearance of the golfers, they showed an astonishing degree of interest, following the play, hole by hole, as far as they could see, and constituting a gallery such as any champion might covet.

But that wasn't the half of it. More soldiers were strewn all over the course, and when the golfers appeared, they evinced an earnest, albeit a friendly, desire to learn all about the game. So anxious were they to determine what it was all about that they pursued one foursome all over the course, stopping every now and then to pick up the balls and examine them. All of the soldiers were in a friendly mood, but their extreme curiosity made play impossible.

More soldiers were found lounging about the clubhouse. Chinese boys employed at the clubhouse made several efforts to dislodge them, but all proved futile. As a result, those members who had taken their clubs back to the clubhouse are now hurrying out to Kiangwan to remove them again, for the soldiery may decide to take up golf in earnest and find themselves in dire need of clubs.

BANKERS' ASSN. ENTRUSTED WITH MINT PROPERTY

Ministry Of Finance Will Give Plant To Custody Of Local Financiers

The Shanghai Chinese Bankers' Association has been requested to take temporary charge of the Shanghai Mint, according to instructions received here by the mint authorities from the Ministry of Finance, Peking.

In view of the reorganisation of the Mint Commission, whose head, Mr. Chu Yu-chi, has resigned, the ministry considered it expedient to hand over the property to the Shanghai Bankers for the present, according to Mr. Sheng Tso-shu, ex-chairman of the association who on behalf of the bankers is handling the affairs of the mint, of which the operation has been delayed on account of the lack of money on the part of the government to meet its obligations.

The Shanghai bankers have made an advance of $2,500,000 on the property of the mint and therefore constitute the largest group of creditors of the new mint. A number of American firms in Shanghai are also creditors, but are agreeable to the arrangement whereby the association may have custody of the property, it is understood.

Mr. Sheng wishes it to be distinctly understood that the control is merely temporary and it is not to be consideded as a transfer.

Mr. Clifford Hewitt, superintendent of the new mint, left here on Monday for Peking to complete details of handing over the property to the association.

Liuho Scene Of Desolation After Looting By Soldiery

Further reports regarding the looting of towns and villages in this section of China by unrestrained soldiery continued to come into Shanghai yesterday. On Sunday, the Rev. J. W. Crofoot of Shanghai accompanied by Dr. Rosa Palmborg and Grace I. Crandall visited the Seventh Day Baptist Mission at Liuho.

The party was stopped by sentries seven or eight times on the outward trip and on three occasions had to wait for some time for its papers to be shown to someone higher up. Practically all the territory outside the suburbs of Shanghai is now in the hands of the Kiangsu troops but near Shanghai the lines are close together, the inner line being held by Chekiang troops. On the return trip the motor car had to wait for their wire entanglements to be removed. The motor road clear to Liuho is in a surprisingly good condition considering the use to which it has been subjected.

As to the Mission buildings at Liuho they might easily have been in a much worse condition, but the same can hardly be said for the contents of the buildings, both hospital equipment and the personal belongings of the staff.

The side of the buildings toward the town has been pretty badly pierced by shrapnel as well as being much "pecked" apparently by rifle fire. Naturally some of the shells had gone clear through the buildings, making big holes on their exit. There must be hardly any whole window glass in the buildings and the roofs are in rather bad shape.

LOOTING IS THROUGH

The looting had been pretty thoroughly done. Probably country people completed what the soldiers began, though it may not have needed any completion. Very little of value is left in the hospital and in the residence it looks rather worse. Each room of all the buildings is littered with refuse, but some are worse than others. Bits of broken window glass, broken furniture, fallen plaster, books in all shapes but the correct one, fallen pictures, etc., make a sad scene.

The doors were all open and soldiers and country people are wandering at will through the place. There are practically no towns people here now but there soon will be.

A Chinese well-to-do merchant—he was well-to-do two months ago—asked to ride back to Shanghai. On reply to a question, he estimated that the proportion of Liuho destroyed would be about four-tenths, and that is as near a guess as any one can make.

FIRE AT NANZIANG

Mr. Wesley M. Smith who was in Nanziang at the time of the burning of that place has supplied to THE CHINA PRESS an account of the fire which took place there on October 16. The first news of the fire was received in Quinsan by the Red Cross asking that the fire brigade be sent down. Although the train left Quinsan at 1:30 it was after seven o'clock before it reached Nanziang. The Quinsan fire brigade has been in existence for about ten years but this is the first time it has ever been called upon to cope with a large fire. The Rev. Walter A. Hearn of Soochow University and Mr. Smith assisted the firemen in their work. Had it not been for the Quinsan fire brigade practically all of the business section of Nanziang would have been destroyed. As it is, the best business houses are all gone and how many families have been driven from their homes is unknown, but must amount into the hundreds.

Before the arrival of the Quinsan fire brigade and foreign helpers every house in Nanziang had been visited by soldiers and looted. Boats and donkeys laden with loot formed an almost unbroken procession out of the town.

Bandits Captured At Anking, Beheaded

(Special Correspondence)

Anking, Oct. 14.—Eight bandits captured here a few days ago and charged with looting were executed this week. Two of them were shot, the usual way of disposing of undesirables in this community but apparently in view of the serious political situation, six of the bandits were beheaded. The executioner is reported to have been an amateur for the whole affair was most gruesome and has been disapproved of by the best interests here. Apparently the officials have decided to clean up the situation hereabouts, hence the methods used in disposing of the bandits.

U. S. DESTROYER HULBERT GAINS COVETED HONOR

Efficiency Flag Of Entire U. S. Battle Fleet Goes To Destroyer Here

The U. S. S. Hulbert of the Asiatic Fleet now moored to the Robert Dollar Dock was presented last Tuesday with the Battle Efficiency Pennant which is the highest award that can be given a vessel of her class. The entire 140 or more destroyers of the American Navy are each year put on a competitive basis. This competition consists of gunnery, torpedoes and engineering. At the end of the competitive year the data is compiled by the experts in Washington and the standing of the vessels is computed. The vessel standing first is awarded this Battle Efficiency Pennant.

Men on the Hulbert have believed all along that they were in the running for this honor but it was only a week or so ago that official notification was received from the Navy Department that the honor was awarded to this vessel. Sailormen from the Hulbert can now be picked out from the other American Bluejackets ashore by the proud satisfied smile they wear.

The Pennant or "meat ball," as it is unofficially known, was presented to the Hulbert by Captain G. B. Landenberger, U. S. N., who is in command of the American Destroyers on this station. The entire crew was gathered on the forecastle of the Hulbert and commanding officers and representatives of nearly every other American naval vessel in port were present at the ceremony.

After a short talk in which he congratulated the officers and men on their efficient performance, and expressed the hope that the same honor would stay in the Asiatic Squadron in the coming years, Captain Landenberger presented the pennant to Captain G. N. Reeves, in command of the Hulbert, who accepted the pennant on behalf of the officers and crew and assured Captain Landenberger that the Hulbert would exert herself to the utmost to retain the same honor in the coming year. Captain Reeves then ordered his quartermaster to hoist the pennant.

American Consular And Diplomatic Service Now Functions As One Body

Amalgamation Into Single Interchangeable Corps Is Worked Out By State Department; Training School Will Be Inaugurated

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, Sept. 24.—The United States foreign service, including consular and diplomatic officials in a single, interchangeable corps, is now functioning, State Department machinery having been completely overhauled and reorganised to put into effect the reorganisation law passed at the last session of Congress.

A vast amount of detail work has been required, but now only one step remains—inauguration of the Foreign Service Training School within the department, authorised by the law—to ensure that future American diplomatic secretaries and consular officers are well equipped for the jobs to which they are assigned.

The first step in the reorganisation, effected by executive order, was the creation of the Foreign Service Personnel Board to examine and report on the "character, ability, efficiency and general availability of all secretaries in the diplomatic service, consuls-general, consuls, vice-consuls of career, consular assistants, interpreters and student interpreters." The report was completed by July 1 and the actual inter-weaving of the consular and diplomatic service has been in progress on that basis.

A primary object of the reorganisation, as explained during debates in Congress on the bill, was to take the foreign service out of politics so far as possible. The personnel board machinery was designed to relieve the White House of the task of selecting for appointment any foreign service official, except those ambassadors and ministers who are not taken from the career groups in the State Department.

PERSONNEL BOARD

There are indications already that the White House has taken immediate advantage of the relief thus afforded. So far as known, selections for appointment to embassies, legations and consulates are being left entirely to the State Department.

The Personnel Board also regulates retirement under the 65-year age limit, pensions being drawn from a fund built up by retaining 5 percent from the salaries of all State Department personnel. One member of the diplomatic corps and 31 from the consular service already have been retired.

The work of the Personnel Board has by no means ended. Records of all officials have to be continually overhauled and kept up to date; individual performances studied to determine in what particular field each individual is most proficient; special qualifications and limitations recorded for future reference. The board has also the power to recommend dismissal of officials whose efficiency rating is low. So far no dismissals have occurred, but some offenders have been demoted and warned that unless improvement is shown they will be dropped.

The Foreign Service School will come into full effect after the fall diplomatic examinations. Successful candidates will attend courses of lectures on all aspects of consular and diplomatic work, including also its subtler sides such as the trickeries most prevalent abroad for evading American regulations and obtaining passports under false pretences. Actual work in the divisions of the State Department will be intermixed with the lectures. After one year of schooling, department officials believe, the students' talents will have shown themselves clearly enough to determine their qualifications for the diplomatic or consular branches.

TRANSFER PERMITTED

Under the bill, transfer from one branch of the service to the other is allowed, but that practice will not be usual or frequent, department officials say. The interchange was made possible mainly because occasions arise where the relations of the United States with certain countries might make the presence of a diplomat, rather than a consul advisable, though no ambassador or minister is formally accredited to protect American interests in that particular place.

Expenses allowances for ambassadors and ministers are contemplated in the bill, and to estimate these expenses the State Department is compiling data as to the minimum with which each mission abroad can keep up in proper style. The results will be submitted to Congress next session.

Department officials describe the new plan as already having had a stimulating influence on the personnel.

CHANG PLEDGES PROTECTION IN NOTE TO JAPAN

Assurances Of Friendship Are Given In Reply To Memorandum

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 21.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin replied to the Japanese memorandum on October 14, which he had received on October 13 as follows:

"It is well known that the three Eastern Provinces for many years have been endeavoring to promote internally the security and welfare of the people, and, externally, friendship with foreign countries.

"At the present time the Fengtien authorities are paying specially keen attention to this all important task. It is highly gratifying to note that our neighboring nation fully appreciates our position. We have in the past afforded full protection to the lives and property of all foreign nationals alike within our boundaries, and it is our firm intention, as declared in a recent public statement, that in the present conflict no harm be done these foreign residents.

"It need hardly be mentioned that in the number of residents and volume of investments and enterprises, Japan has an interest in the three Eastern Provinces overwhelmingly greater than any other power. We shall therefore endeavor, as far as our authority carries, to protect her nationals and their property, so that they may continue to live in peace and contentment in increasing friendship with our people.

"In offering above assurances afresh, we beg to express our deep appreciation of the attitude of strict neutrality as maintained by Japan in the present struggle."

London, Oct. 20.—The Conservative battle-cry for the final week of the campaign will be "Work for a clear majority and relief from elections," according to advice given to the workers by the Conservative headquarters, which is receiving encouraging reports of the Party's prospects in the constituencies.

A scrutiny of the nominations show that 41 women are standing including Mrs. Bertrand Russell (Labor).

It is noteworthy that the seven Republicans, who are all Irish, are at present interned in Ulster.

The 11th Commandment— Don't Be a Fool

Arthur Brisbane must have had the Fool in "A Fool There Was" in mind when he wrote:

"Woman—T. N. T.

"Man—D. F."

He put it in chemical formula.

One step more and you have a chemical equation.

T. N. T. plus D. F. equal K. O.

Which reduced to understandable English means:

Woman, explosive, plus Man, ... , equals a knock out.

"A Fool There Was" at the Isis Theatre beginning Sunday next is a knock out.

Mrs. Hubbell-Plummer Sings At Reception Of American Women's Club

Interesting Paper On History Of Women's Organizations in America Read By Miss A. Viola Smith

A program of unusual interest was presented at the American Women's Club reception for new and old members, yesterday afternoon, in the club rooms, 66 Szechuen Road. Mrs. Beatrice Hubbell-Plummer sang some of her own compositions which are charming and original songs of childhood representing the child's own fancies about nature and the things of his daily life of work and play. Mrs. Hubbell-Plummer composed most of her songs from doings and reflections of her own little boy and his little cousins, and the songs distinctly reflect her love of children and her genius for pleasing them.

Mrs. H. B. Lane, first vice-president of the club officially welcomed the new members and conducted the short business meeting, preceding the program arranged for the afternoon by the Social Department. Mrs. W. H. Lunt, Chairman of this department introduced Mrs. Hubbell-Plummer The program began with Mrs. Plummer singing "The Lord's Prayer," and followed with "Pussy-willows," "Moon Song," "Egg Shampoo," and "Weentsy Baby," the latter referred to by the music critic of the New York "Sun" as being the only song where a child's cry has been heard in music. It is a real cry, heard with a mother's ear and expressed in descending semi-tones by an artist. Mrs. Plummer has put the home into music, outdoors and indoors, upstairs and downstairs.

Miss A. Viola Smith, Assistant Trade Commissioner, and chairman of the civic Department of the American Women's Club, followed this program of music with a short talk on the "History of Women's Clubs" and traced the history of women's clubs up to the present influential Federated Women's Club, found in many parts of the world. Miss Smith said the women's clubs did not originate with the Sorosis Club of New York, but in former days were referred to as female universities, encyclopedia repeaters, etc. The first idea of Federated Women's Club originated in New York, and a serious attempt was made to get Mrs. Jannie C. Croly, known as "Jenny June" to take the presidency. However, Mrs. Croly refused the honor and remained officially connected with the Sorosis Club, the organisation of which she was the first president.

2,600,000 WOMEN

"This General Federation today represents 2,600,000 women, guided by serious minded level headed leaders who are piloting the way for the younger generation that is to come," Miss Smith continued.

"We in the Far East sometimes feel out of touch with the homeland, yet it is our privilege to be affiliated with this General Federation of Women's Clubs, through whom we have not only the opportunity of making our voice heard but of receiving continual inspiration. As early as 1894, the General Federation made prominent women leaders in foreign countries honorary members of their organisation. Later a foreign correspondent was named whose duties it is to more closely unite the affiliated clubs in foreign lands with the General Federation, especially the American women's clubs abroad.

"Over thirty foreign clubs are now affiliated with the General Federation. Our own club has been so affiliated since 1902. To my mind those American women who have established clubs in Paris, in London, in Sweden, in Constantinople, in South America, and other lands, as well as we here in the Far East, are as much the forerunners of a greater Federation of Women's Clubs which is now in the process of evolution, as was the Sorosis Society in 1868 the forerunner for the General Federation of Women's Clubs. And I like to feel that the American Women's Club of Shanghai has a particular and a peculiar contribution to make to this larger and greater organisation to be—that, living as we do, in an internatioanl community, under international municipal ordinances, when the time comes for the birth of this greater International Federation, that we will have so far progressed in the practical list of an international community spirit, that we will be amongst the leaders of that greater Federation for international understanding towards which the world of today is so surely proceeding, despite its groping ways."

ENROLL NEW MEMBERS

Mrs. J. J. Brenneman, chairman of the membership committee read the names of the new members to be presented before the club. Those enrolled were: Mrs. Helen Danforth, Miss Grace M. Johnson, Mrs. D. W. Lyon, Mrs. George Bronson Rea, Mrs. G E. Sokolsky, Mrs. Arthur Rugh, and Mrs. R. C. Short. The associate members included: Mrs. J. Moses, Mrs. J. M. McKee and Mrs. A. V. White. Mrs. Lane called on some of the members recently returned from America to relate some of their experiences while home.

Mrs. C. L. Boynton, recording secretary read a note of appreciation received from the Danish Consulate in response to the resolution sent by the club in memory of the late Danish Consul, Mr. Raaschou.

Mrs. Gardner Crane announced the postponement of the play "A Full House," to be presented by the Dramatic Department, to November 10, 11 and 12. Tickets have been issued in book form and can be had from Mrs. R. H. Hudson. It is requested that members exert a keen interest in the sale of tickets as the funds will go toward the upkeep of the club.

Holland And U.S. Dispute Ownership Of Palmas Island

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Oct. 1.—The Netherlands and the United States are still disputing the possession of Palmas Island, the most southerly island of the Philippine archipelago, about 150 miles south of the island of Mindanao. The Netherlands, however, are in control of the tiny speck of land which was ceded to the United States by Spain under the treaty of Paris.

The affairs of the island are administered by the Government of Java and according to Governor-General Wood, who recently visited Palmas, excellent progress has been made in the establishment of schools and the building of roads.

Philippines Expects Big Tobacco Crop

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, October 1.—The greatest tobacco crop produced in the last 20 years in the Philippines will be harvested in the Cagayan and Pampanga valleys of northern Luzon this year, according to advices to the bureau of agriculture. The reason given for the expected bumper crop is the almost unprecedented floods of last year which killed all the insects which usually attack the tobacco lands.

Most of the tobacco which reaches the United States as Manila cigars is grown in the Cagayan Valley.

British Artificial Silk Trade Is Reported Good

London, Sept. 13.—Considerable interest was aroused yesterday in textile circles in the City by the article in The Times on "Artificial Silk." The suggestion, however, that our own manufacturers are not sufficiently alive to their opportunities did not meet with approval. Indeed, so far as the headquarters of the industry in the City is concerned, there was a disposition to say nothing and to await events.

Both Aldermanbury and Newgatestreet know all about Italy, and they have not the slightest fear. As a matter of fact one large English firm really controls the industry. Its finance is singularly good and its reserves, in consequence, so ample that it is prepared to deal with any situation which may arise. Doubtless there is a great future for what is known as "Art," or "Artificial Silk," but after all, there are limits. The basis of its manufacure is wood pulp, and there is, at present, not more than enough of that commodity to supply the newspapers, which are its chief consumers.

An important textile organisation in close touch with this branch of the silk industry supplied some interesting details to a representative of The Times yesterday. Accordingly artificial silk is being used to supersede the finer qualities of mercerised cotton and very fine gassed yarns. It is entering as weft or filling, on warps of both cotton and wool. Recently all artificial fabrics have been put on the market, and they, of course, come into direct competition with certain spun silk fabrics. At the moment Lancashire cotton firms, so far from sitting idle, are experimenting with artificial silk. In such circumstances there need be little apprehension that Lancashire will lose anything by the popularity of the new commodity, and no fear that Lancashire is asleep. The doubling of artificial yarns has already become an important branch of the Lancashire industry, and the fancy yarns of Stockport are used extensively by the knitting houses in Leicestershire and Nottingham.

"The firms already engaged in the manufacture of artificial silk here are producing the finest yarns in the world. Any foreign country which sets out to compete with the English manufacturers will be well advised to remember the tremendous costs incurred by the English companies in experimenting to find the most suitable plant and the best processes. One firm is said to have spent something like £2,000,000 in this way before attempting production on a commercial scale. It is not known what type of artificial silk Italy intends to produce so largely, but there is only a limited market for the inferior types of the article and they are at present manufactured on the Continent. The finest qualities are manufactured here exclusively. There is no reason to suppose that English manufacturers will allow foreign firms to beat them in either the home or foreign markets."

Mr. A. E. Ball, the secretary of the Silk Association and of the Silk Research Association, did not think the real silk trade had anything to fear. Artificial silk was largely used as an adjunct to real silk, but the world was not producing less real silk. It certainly threatened cotton more than silk.

FOREIGN IMPORTS INCREASE

Nottingham, September 12—So far as the consumption of artificial silk in this country is concerned the home manufacturer holds a pre-eminent position. But so rapidly is the demand expanding that unless domestic production is increased, and the supply made more economically accessible to users, imports from the Continent already considerable, are bound to grow. The high quality of manufacture, which is the greatest asset of British trade in all kinds of goods is for the moment the distinguishing feature between British and foreign "art" silk, but it has to be recognised that Continental countries are improving their standard of production, and while for lustre, tensile strength, and weaving, knitting and dyeing properties their "art" silk is, except in rare cases, inferior to and never superior to our own, there is no reason why they should not within a short period compete on equal terms with us.

A disturbing hint of the kind of competition we may expect was furnished the other day when the buyer of a well-known firm bought a large quantity of artificial silk goods made in Germany, and, believing that they were real silk, the firm sold them as such. It required the skilled examination of experts using a microscope to tell the difference. One has only o remember that the cost of artificial silk is barely a fourth of that of spun silk, and to bear in mind the irresistible appeal which silk of any kind makes to women, to realise the enormous field which is now opening up in trade in this new material. Barely a quarter of a century has elapsed since the industry was established, and it was not until two or three years before the war that it had attained to important dimensions. Yet today the annual production of the world is estimated at 120,000,000lb. weight.

There are a number of different kinds of artificial silk, and variations are being constantly produced but the two styles most generally used in this country are viscose and celanese. Neither is available in sufficient quantities to meet requirements. That so little is exported. All artificial silk is made from wood pulp, cotton, or paper. France Germany, Holland, and America all produce it in large quantities. Viscose, which is derived from wood pulp, may be said to be universally made, since any cellulose treated with caustic soda and carbon bi-sulphide will give xanthate. The threat of Continental competition can be successfully met provided Lancashire in particular, instead of leaving the production of artificial silk in a very limited number of hands, turns its attention to the problem.

The successful combination of artificial silk wih wool or cotton on the same machine has recently exended the field enormously. Continental makes are not so consistent in their "behavior" as British, but in a number of instances the former are undeniably cheaper, and that is where Lancashire, with its limitless resources in mass production, should come to the rescue.

Mr. Arthur Cousins, of the wellknown firm of Messrs. Horrockses, Crewdson, and Co., of Preston, in a striking article in the Silk Journal, warns Lancashire that artificial silk possesses qualities which may easily change the whole attitude of the public on the subject of clothes hygiene, and he suggests that in a scientific blending of artificial silk and cotton we may yet discover the actual ideal fabric shall be not only healthy to wear but pleasing to the eye and touch. Cotton and artificial silk together may soon become a staple article, just as wool or cotton now are. The difficulties of dyeing have been overcome, owing chiefly to the great progress made in colloid chemistry, and now that the chemist has done his part by clearing the way for the manufacturer it is for the latter to seize his opportunity with both hands. There are rumors of great developments in the production of artificial silk in Italy. That country, like the rest of the Continent, possesses great advantages over us through their lower wages, longer working hours, and our unprotected ports, but these may be counterbalanced by our greater technical skill and mechanical resources provided that the most is made of them.

BIG LANCASHIRE OUTPUT

Manchester, September 12,—It will not be for want of encouragement from the principle producers of artificial silk yarn in this country if the Lancashire textile trade does not get a full share of a rapidly expanding trade upon this material. Messrs. Courtaulds, Limited, are themselves manufacturers on a large scale of artificial silk fabrics at their mills in the North of England and Wales, where the business is mainly the production of the raw material and the spinning of it into yarn.

Artificial silk is becoming one of the world's major textile industries, and fashion at present strongly favors it.

A great opportunity is presented to the depressed Lancashire cotton industry, in so far as that depression is due to the shortness and dearness of the raw cotton supply, in the increasing substitution of artificial silk for the cotton fibre, either wholly or in part, in the spinning of the yarn, or in the making of the warp or weft. The possibility of this change over from cotton to artificial silk or the incorporation of big proportions of the artificial silk with the cotton in the fabric, is no theoretical or laboratory matter. I was today shown a number of "demonstration weaves" in stuffs wholly or in part of artificial silk, and their variety was no less remarkable than their beauty of color and design. Artificial silk presents some dyeing problems of its own, but none that are not already on the way to solution.

...ing advantage of artificial silk is that the industry is one to which exising cotton looms can be adopted with very little capital outlay, and no special technial labor problems arise. It is true that the great speeds in production obtainable in plain weaves of cotton cloth are not possible with highly finished and delicate fabrics, but the best products of the Blackburn looms are already in the same category and require minute attention and comparatively slow speed of production.

Much work in the department of trial and research needs yet to be done. This, however, should not deter enterprise. It is for Lancashire manufacturers to seize their opportunity, and not to wait till rivals in this country and abroad have had time to buy suitable machinery from the Lancashire textile engineers, and to train other than Lancashire operatives how to use it. The hosiery and knitted goods manufacturers have been quick enough to see their chance.

USES IN WOMEN'S ATTIRE

Artificial silk is not new. Many women have worn it in some form or other—mostly as a lingerie stockinette fabric—for the past four or five years before it began to be an entirely satisfactory material. The recent development of it, however, has been considerable. It is used as a useful "alloy" in making many rich brocades and satins and is even employed in making chiffon velvet.

Some beautiful designs in brocades for wraps and coats have been made with a ground of real silk and a design of artificial. This employment of artificial silk to get new effects in brilliancy of sheen is perhaps its most interesting use. Some of these brocades and satins cost as much as two guineas a yard, but artificial silk has been used also to produce a fabric called by various names—"fulget" in its cheaper forms and "fulgurante" and 'luisant' in its more expensive weaves—which takes the place of metal tissues for evening dresses at about half the price of the real metal tissues. Artificial silk has been in some case woven with metal, and where this has been done it is said the metal does not tarnish as quickly as is usually the case.

Quicker Delivery Of Silk Recommended

A proposal that will greatly facilitate silk shipment from Japan to New York via Seattle and Vancouver is the purpose of a recommendation of the Federal Deputy Minister of Health that the quarantine station at William Head on Vancouver Island be operated 24 hours a day, thus obviating serious delays to trans-Pacific liners. This information has just been received at the Kobe office of the Admiral Oriental Line.

Under the present regulations, if a steamer reaches William Head after 9 o'clock at night it is forced to lay until morning, meaning the loss of many valuable hours. Many trans-Pacific cargoes are valued as high as $10,000,000. Because of the high rates and interest charges on this commodity, the silk is rushed through from Yokohama to the waiting transcontinental trains meeting Admiral Oriental liners at Seattle and Canadian Pacific liners at Vancuver with the utmost speed.

Minutes are precious in the disposition of this valuable cargo and consequently a six or seven hour delay at the quarantine station represents a loss that the steamship companies affected are striving to avoid.

By the proposed new regulation, a vessel reaching William Head say at 11 o'clock at night could clear quarantine, discharge cargo and passengers at Victoria and arrive in port before sunrise. In this way silk cargoes gain many hours in their journey to New York and New Jersey silk mills.

Admiral Line officials call attention to the fact that the time saved at the quarantine station would enable passengers to spend the day in Seattle sightseeing before leaving that night for their eastern destinations.

Just What Has The War About Shanghai Settled?

IT is too early of course to appraise the final results of the war in the Shanghai district for it may all be overturned by a victory by General Chang Tso-lin in the North, but assuming that General Wu Pei-fu either wins a victory or holds General Chang's troops at the Great Wall, it is of interest to speculate upon what has happened here even though the peace has not yet been signed and settled.

According to more or less accurate reports in circulation yesterday the troops formerly under Generals Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin, former controllers of Chekiang Province and the Shanghai-Woosung-Sungkiang district are to be split three ways. Part of them will go to General Chi Hsieh-yuan of Kiangsu, part to General Sun Chuan-fang of Chekiang and the remainder to the man appointed defense commissioner here. The Shanghai-Woosung-Sungkiang district, previously under the political control of Chekiang, has been returned to the political control of the Nanking Tuchun, but as stated previously in these columns in order to obtain the victory it has been necessary to bring in troops from many quarters, Fukien, Anhwei, Honan, Hupei and elsewhere and political debts must be paid one way or another. Therefore we naturally wonder whether the war really has accomplished much in this section and when we consider the price that has been paid for the elimination of the so-called "independent" officials of Chekiang Province, most impartial observers are of opinion that very little has been gained and especially is this true when the costs are considered.

Included in the costs of the war of course must be included the not-inconsiderable sum of money which the Shanghai merchants must supply for paying off the arrears of salaries of the defeated Chekiang troops but this is the smallest part of the cost. The big cost of the war is to be found in the burned and looted villages in the extensive district ranging from twenty to fifty miles to the north and south of Shanghai. According to reports by refugees and by foreign travelers there is scarcely a house in the entire district which has escaped the looter and in the larger towns such as Sungkiang, Hoochow, Nanziang, Kating, Liuho, Woosung, Chenju and elsewhere the torch has been added to the work of the robber-soldier. Then on top of this must be added the cost of maintaining refugee camps in Shanghai which without question will have to be kept up all winter.

But above and beyond all of this is the actual cost of the war, salaries for men and officers and cost of arms and munitions, and railway property damaged and destroyed. No one has any idea what this item will amount to, but that it will be enormous goes without saying. Certainly Kiangsu and Chekiang Provinces and the Peking Government have paid and will continue to pay for a long time an enormous sum for the victory over the "independent" province of Chekiang.

As stated at the beginning, it is impossible to say just what the final arrangement regarding the control of this district will be, but from rumors in the air—nothing but rumors as yet—but nevertheless rumors which show how the political wind is blowing, the dearly-bought victory may not have so greatly changed the political situation hereabouts. General Sun Chuan-fang of Chekiang undoubtedly will have much to say regarding the future of this district even though it has been returned to the nominal control of Kiangsu province. This has been shown in the conflicting appointments and announcements of appointments of new officials in this district. On one day last week Generals Chi and Sun appointed different men to a certain office here and as to the defense commissionership this is still an open question. General Sun appointed General Pei Pao-san to the position of acting defense commissioner and General Chi, while not stating whether he concurred in the appointment let it be known that he had another man in mind for the position. The latest on the subject is that General Pei is to be sent to the North to fight against Fengtien. And thus it goes. Most certainly the elements of discord are already showing up and unless something can be done to smooth out the matter not many months may elapse before Kiangsu and Chekiang may again be plotting against each other.

And as to the removal of the arsenal and the neutralisation of this district, apparently nothing has been accomplished. General Chi Hsieh-yuan apparently has retreated from his brave position of a year ago and is now either non-committal or is passing the question up to Peking to play with. General Sun Chuan-fang, since he apparently is not to control these strategic points, is now in favor of removing them from Shanghai. Naturally he does not desire to see such important war machines pass into the hands of an associate who may become an enemy tomorrow.

Thus without waiting to see what may happen in the North, it is easy to observe today that the war with its disruption of business and society and its terrible cost in all probability has accomplished very little except to bring to the stage a new set of players.

The Smoke Nuisance

IT so frequently happens in civic matters that everybody's business is regarded as nobody's business, that we are not surprised that no one particularly troubles himself about the smoke which the funnels of steam launches belch forth along the Bund foreshore morning, noon and night. This matter is ordinarily referred to as the smoke nuisance, yet it would scarcely be an exaggeration to say that it is something more than a mere nuisance—it is a veritable problem which confronts residents of the central district, especially that section which cannot get away at an early hour in the afternoon and perforce have to fall back on the Bund foreshore for their daily constitutional. The narrow strip of turf there is the only piece of ground accessible to them where they expect a breath of fresh air, but usually succeed in getting only a pall of smoke. Acting on the good old principle that "more miles mean more years," denizens of the central district eagerly repair to the Bund foreshore determined to indulge in a vigorous "hike" up and down the strip of inviting turf, but they are generally assailed by the smoke emitted from the innumerable launches moored alongside the pontoons. Not long ago a local resident sat on the foreshore in the vicinity of the Palace Hotel, facing the river, from 5.30 p.m. to 6.30, just the time that people go in quest of fresh air, and being of a statistical bent of mind, he counted, at one time, no fewer than nine steam launches moored alongside the Nanking Road Jetty, apart from those that were stationed at another jetty close by. The combined smoke from all those craft was assuredly no pleasure to promenaders on the Bund, who were in no time begrimed with smoke and covered with soot. It was an experience that anyone can have any day in the week if he feels so inclined, and that, perhaps, accounts for the growing paucity of the crowd on the Bund.

The only remedy for this deplorable state of affairs is the substitution of gasoline engines in place of the coal-burning machinery at present installed in the steam launches or a smoke-consuming attachment, if such things exist for coal consuming launch engines. The starting of such a movement should find favor with the heads of those important banks and firms whose offices are situated along the waterfront and who must be one of the principal daily victims of the smoke nuisance. If we look for reasons why we have so long tolerated this preventible evil, they will probably be found in the fact that we are creatures of circumstance and do certain things year in and year out out of sheer force of habit. Because local steam launches have hitherto burnt coal, we are quite content to tolerate with the utmost complacence the continuance of the smoke evil. In other parts of the world, however, there are noticeable a greater receptiveness of new ideas and new methods. There are not wanting indications that the world is on the threshold of discoveries which will dwarf into insignificance all that have gone before. Already the supremacy of coal is threatened; it is impossible to put it higher than that, but the use of the word "threatened" is justified. It is too early to say that liquid fuel will take the place of coal, for though there are many advantages in the use of oil, the world's supply of it, so far as is known, is by no means inexhaustible, and unless further progress is made in the manufacture of cheap vegetable spirit, there would seem to be a definite limit to the use of liquid fuel for industrial purposes.

Liquid fuel is by no means the only competitor of coal. Hydroelectrical development in the last generation has been so rapid that already countries that possess water power are able to a large extent to make use of it as a substitute for coal for the purpose of developing energy. The use of the tides, the applications of the heat of the sun and other similar projects present problems that have not yet been solved satisfactorily. It is by no means impossible to utilise the power of the tides; the practical problem is concerned with the difficulty of doing so on a commercial basis, since the outlay of capital entailed by the necessary works may be represented in interest and depreciation charges that bring the cost up to an uncommercial figure. For many years the world has waited for an efficient accumulator by which power developed in one place could be transported to another without the intervention of cables entailing costly upkeep. Perhaps we are on the eve of discovering means of transferring power by some method not hitherto known. Possibly the future has in store discoveries that will revolutionise present practice altogether, but meanwhile a means of storing electrical energy so that its general need no longer synchronise with its utilisation would be an immense boon and greatly reduce the cost of installation. These, it may be said, are mere speculations, but it is all to the good that such problems and others of a more immediately practical nature should be discussed. Who shall say what is, and what is not, possible? There is virtually no limit to the range of human inventive genius, and some day, perchance sooner than we expect, the unlovely smoke disfiguring the persons of jaded promenaders on the Shanghai Bund and so trying to their tempers, may be relegated to the limbo of forgotten memories. The tendency is ever in the direction of progress and advancement. What was good enough ten or twenty years ago is no longer accounted good enough today.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

CHINESE NOT PACIFISTS ANYWAY

Evening Register, New Haven, Conn.

Just what they are fighting about in China is as much of an enigma to the average American as are the Chinese people in general. But they are fighting, notwithstanding a sort of attempt by the marines of various nations to get ashore and separate them. So far as we can judge, no mighty issue is at stake. It is not even a recrudescence of the strife between the northern and southern republics. It is not only plain civil war, but petty civil war.

Apparently China is not a country noted for pacifists of the sort we have. The Chinese are not notably a fighting people, yet on the other hand they lack a wholesome dread of war. Only a short time ago a member of the Chinese senate wrote a letter to an unnamed friend in Washington, the gist of which has—rather imprudently, it would seem—got published in our newspapers. It was to the effect that the Chinese people are most indignant at England, France, Japan, the United States and Italy for clinging to their "privileged positions" in that country without granting reciprocal concessions in their own countries. They should give up the legation quarter in Peking. They should waive all indemnities which China is still forced to pay. Hongkong, Kowloon, Liao-tung and Formosa should be returned to China at once, and Burma, Annam and Korea allowed to become independent. These and other things should be done. And the letter concluded:

"All the above demands are but just and fair. If you should regard them as excessive and unreasonable, China with her 400,000,000 people will unite with the weak and small races of Asia and the suppressed peoples of Europe and Africa and meet you in the field of battle to fight out the issue."

This is the wildest of talk, of course, and wholly unbacked by authority. But it shows how little China fears the name of war. And there's a war picture, my countrymen, which may well stir up the pacifists, at any rate, and should be good for another rise out of Brother Bryan.

CIVIL WAR AROUND SHANGHAI AND THE SEQUEL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—There are about twenty thousand defeated but armed Chekiang mercenaries around Shanghai who have been deserted by their leaders, and who are left here to shift more or less for themselves. From day to day they are becoming a graver menace, as some are slipping away, some have indeed done so already, to swell the ranks of bandits who will welcome them with open arms owing to the additional weapons they bring along. Others are selling their equipments to agents of bandits, who are only too eager to purchase rifles, pistols and ammunition for a song, and we may take it for granted that they are so well organised as to be able to get away without hinderance.

There is an old Chinese saying which runs

"Hao jen pu tang ping,
Hao tieh pu ta ting."

(good men do not become soldiers, and good iron is not converted into nails). We may trust the originator of the above quoted rhyme to have been a wise man who knew his people, and we can assume that today's soldiers may be bandits of tomorrow.

If I remember correctly, British bluejackets were landed during the revolution to take over the Shanghai - Nanking Station, as British interests were involved. Had similar action been taken when the trouble between the rival Tuchuns started, Shanghai would have long ere this regained a state of normalcy. After this experience it is hoped that the foreign powers will succeed in arranging for the disappearance of all the various troops around Shanghai for good.

Shanghai has now had its turn of tasting the effects of civil war and what can be expected from a so-called Republican form of government. Thirteen years of strife have proved the fallacy of driving away the Ta Ching regime, and the foreign powers that have allowed such a dangerous experiment should now cry halt, as the Chinese do not seem able to settle the matter themselves.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours very truly
H. K.

Shanghai, Oct. 20, 1924.

FRAGMENTS OF THE DAY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—Strange as it is, the "Albany, N. Y., Times-Union" states that the Central Government of China "occupies buildings and controls archives, but has no armies," neglecting the fact that there exists an army of westernised students of distinction, who, being greedy of gains or rather covetous of high positions still cast in their lot with the rotten-to-the-core government—a government not voted by the will of its citizens, but recognised, for certain reasons unknown, by the legal Powers.

However, there are others of the ignominious type who, taking advantage of the civil war now raging in China, are resorting to certain kind of propaganda with the object of insinuating the civilised Powers with the unlawful word "intervention," which, strictly speaking, would mean the encroachment upon the integrity of China.

But fortunately the present civil war in China is practically inconsistent with the war of the past; its fundamental principle lies in the elimination or overthrow of the corrupt officials in Ptking, whose tendencies towards the country are by no means based on constructive policy.

China is in a stage of transition, and fighting is, therefore, necessary, especially for its very existence. Instead of devising means and ways to relief the sufferings of millions of people throughout the length and breadth of the Republic, the President, utilising a lump sum of money—not to say of floating secret loans—naturally opened hostilities with the Military Governors of the various provinces who declared him to be the "illegal" government.

"The present war represents a new attempt by the Japan-owned Chang Tso-lin, Super-Tuchun of Manchuria, to seat himself as dictator in Peking," continues the "Times-Union." In contradictory to this statement, Chang Tso-lin has publicly announced his attitudes towards the present war in a manifesto, describing that being not versed in politics and a military officer himself, he swears that he has absolutely no aspirations whatsoever for high position; his main object this time is to wipe out those militarists, whose existence would only retard the progress of China, and whether or not his present attempt will be a fait accompli, he will, as he declared publicly, go back to his own position as soon as the war is ended. So he is a different Chang Tso-lin today.

Realising that Wu Pei-fu is but a Military dictator, it would be unwise to compare him to the distinguished figure of George Washington, L. L. D. (a product of Brown University); the tendency of the former is autocratic in action—viz., to unify the country by force of arms, whereas the latter is democratic in principle, with noble ardous and elevation of mind.

Whatever might be the characteristic feature of the day will be the unworthy issuance to the Peking Government of $4,200,000 Bonds by a certain alien in Peking which amount though outwardly is not intended for military purposes, will more or less help to plunge the people into misery at the present juncture. In other words, it would tend to prolong the warfare in some way. And from a military point of view, it seems that he is to make fish of one and flesh of the other.

To be sure, the real Chinese life as well as the real condition of China's internal affairs has invariably been misrepresented by people on the other side of the ocean and even some of those who are staying in China—the mother country of the world. As a matter of fact, it would be a herculean task for them to understand literally the affairs of China, in the absence of a knowledge of the Chinese classics or the philosophical doctrines of Confucius, Mencius and vice versa. Otherwise they are similar to, if not identical with, an up-to-date artist sketching from nature, giving especial attention to generality rather than detail. Fides servanda est.

Lost Atlantis Found Again

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Since I wrote in June last about the revival in Europe of interest in the ancient story of a sunken continent in the Atlantic Ocean there has appeared a fresh discussion of this fascinating subject by Louis Germain, assistant in the National Museum of Natural History at Paris, which seems to me to come very close to proving the case for Plato's "Atlantis."

Basing his investigation on evidences furnished by botany, zoology, mineralogy, climatology, oceanography, paleontology, physiography, geology and historic tradition, he succeeds in making a very plausible picture of the mutations of the North Atlantic since the Cretaceous Period, the great features of which are a succession of sinkings (effondrements), whereby a great band of land connecting Southern Europe and Northern Africa with South America, an "Africano-Brazilian continent," was, by successive catastrophes, buried under the ocean.

According to this account there were three "Atlantises," of which only the last and the least can be associated with the prehistoric period of man. This was the Atlantis of Plato and the Egyptian priests. It was the last remnant of the vast continental band, or "bridge," which had connected the eastern and western worlds.

M. Germain calls the original land link between Africa and America the "Tertiary Atlantis," because it existed at the beginning of the Tertiary Period. Early perhaps in the Miocene, the second phase of the Tertiary Period, this mass of land began to sink, at first on the American side. The geological vestige of this subsidence is the deep oceanic trench that is in evidence eastward of Florida. The subsiding continent was parceled into archipelagoes, whence the origin of the Antilles and the Bahamas.

But later on in the Miocene other sinkings occurred, and then the Azores and the Madeiras were separated from Europe. The region of the Canaries, however, remained a distinct continental mass separated from the other archipelagoes, but connected by land with Northern Africa. This became the Atlantis of the legends, the last fragment of the vast Tertiary continent that had spanned the ocean at the end of the Cretaceous.

Finally it, too, was engulfed. This did not occur until the Quaternary Period had opened; M. Germain thinks it may have been as late as the middle of the Quaternary and even as late as the Neolithic, or New Stone, age, when the primitive races of man had achieved a degree of culture which modern discoveries are just beginning to reveal to us.

Man, then, as M. Germain says, "may have beheld the closing phases of this great phenomenon, accompanied by bore-waves and grandiose volcanic eruptions. Of these catastrophic convulsions, at once the witness and the victim, he preserved a very vivid oral tradition, which was fixed many centuries later by the writers of antiquity.

"And that Northern Africa where, at the dawn of civilisation, there existed, southward of the Atlas range, a beaten route of invasions and of human migrations, was the theater of those wars of which Diodorus Siculus tells us so confusedly, wars which perhaps were waged against the natives of Africa by the Atlantes fleeing from their sunken country."

So, if these conclusions are sound, science "certifies the existence of Atlantis, indicates the place that it occupied on the face of the globe, and marks out, though vaguely, its contours. But it is incapable of fixing with precision the dates of its sinkings, and only with difficulty does it glimpse the fact that the closing convulsions of this prodigious shock were contemporary with the earliest forms of humanity."

Let those whose voyages carry them within sight of the lonely peak of Teneriffe look with veneration upon its towering form, for, in all probability, it is nature's funereal monument of the lost continent.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

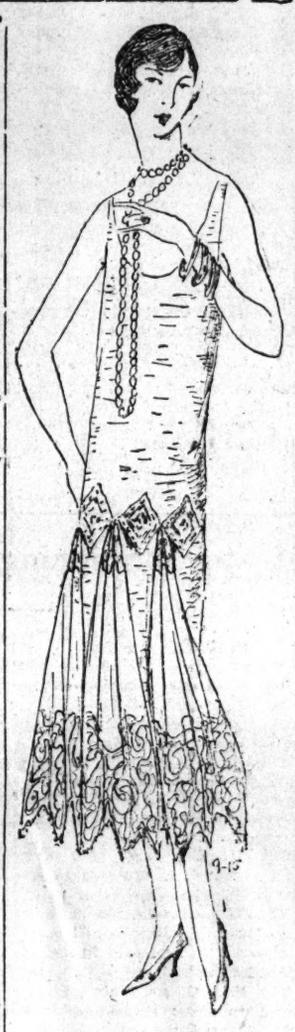
Fullness is Added in Front to Make the Backs of Frocks Seem Flatter Than Ever

We learned the trick of stretching the cloth of our gowns and wraps quite snug in the back from the Orient. You would have to search far and wide in the Occident to find precedent for the flat, scant backs that we have been wearing for a season or so. It is Japanese, Chinese, Egyptian—anything but European. The idea with which most of us were brought up was that while trimmings went for the most part on the front of our frocks, most of the fullness went to the back—especially important was it to have skirt fullness drawn to the back. The taut drawn back was ugly, unfashionable, even indecent.

But now we must all have become quite used to the idea of having fabric drawn flat across the back of frocks. There are some women who still feel that the effect is ugly, but at least they have grown used to regarding it as smart.

Further to emphasize the flatness of the back of skirts French designers are now increasing the fullness at the front. Berthe of Paris makes frocks with back as flat as any griddle cake and then adds the effect of further posterior flatness by introducing fullness at the front, held in at the line of the hips by smocking. Lanvin makes her new frock even flatter at the back than she ever did before—which is saying a good deal—and then draws attention to the fullness in front by placing very large discs of embroidery there.

Poiret is one of the French designers who introduces fullness in front by means of godets. The sketch shows how this is done on one of his new evening frocks. It is of apricot lame trimmed in the front with godets of chiffon and lace, which are held with jeweled motifs.



Paquin model of apricot lame trimmed in front with godets of chiffon and gold lace held with jeweled motifs which mark the waistline.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

IF YOU HAVE FURS—

Don't forget that every fur coat or wrap or collar you have is an added responsibility as well as an asset. Furs need to be cared for if you do not want to have them deteriorate. A cloth suit may be neglected to a certain extent, it may be left unbrushed and unpressed, and allowed to get a little spotty, and may then be sent to the cleaner's and tailor's and come back in presentable condition. But furs neglected can rarely be restored to their original good looks.

You should have a special brush for your furs, which should be soft and should be kept clean. Furs should be lightly brushed with this regularly. It is better to brush them after you have worn them, rather than waiting till you are about to wear them.

Nice furs should not be allowed to get wet or damp. However, if your fur does get wet, don't think of brushing it or smoothing it. Just shake the fur well and hang in a warm dry room, but do not put before a fire or radiator. When thoroughly dry brush the fur with your soft brush.

White furs are a source of much care. They should not be allowed to get really soiled. If slightly soiled they may be cleaned at home by several applications of magnesia. This should first be heated in the oven and then rubbed through the fur with a piece of clean gauze or cheesecloth. The magnesia should remain in the fur for a little while, and should then be thoroughly brushed or shaken out.

FREAKS OF FASHION

One of the leading French dressmakers has recently shown an evening wrap made from a soft woolen Oriental rug. One wonders how far the fad will extend. When a few years ago French dressmakers hit upon the idea of using old paisley shawls for wraps, American women in great numbers dug out old shawls from their attic and soon blossomed forth in home-made paisley-shawl wraps. How long before ingenious home dressmakers will turn slightly worn Oriental rugs to account in the making of new evening wraps.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

My nature, I am sure, must be
A very simple one, indeed;
A little good luck pleases me,
Few daring leaps supply my need;
I like to hear a mellow chime,
And any orchard on a hill,
All pink and white in blossom time,
Gives me a thrill.

A mother clasping to her breast
A babe that lisps its earliest word;
A good old man who sits at rest,
A high plane, soaring like a bird;
A mill stream splashing o'er a wheel,
Two lovers leaning on a gate—
Such things as these cause me to feel
That life is great.

I get a thrill when I behold
A liner putting out to sea;
A crimson sunset tinged with gold
Seems very wonderful to me;
A chief who bravely has withstood
Perfumed allurements of the bad
Convinces me that God is good,
And makes me glad.

I never have to travel far
In search of thrills; I find them here,
In clusters, where my duties are
And where I keep my conscience clear.
My nature must be simple; I
May merit gifted men's disdain;
I have no reason, though, to try
To seem insane.

TSINGTAO NAVY CHIEFTAIN GOES TO CHINWANGTAO

Despite Military Atmosphere Races Force War Into Background

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, October 14.—Admiral Wen Shou-teh left here for the front on Sunday on board his gunboat, the destination, it is learned, being Chinwangtao. Two more gunboats remain here of the Admiral's squadron and it is said they are also preparing to leave for a northern port. The American destroyer No. 343, which has been in port for the past month, still remains here.

Although there is an undoubted military atmosphere here, especially since the arrival of the special defence garrison from other stations in Shantung, comprising about 3,000 soldiers under the command of General Wang, the war was forced into the background the last few days by the October meeting of the Tsingtao International Recreation Club, which, although organised only in the Spring of the present year, already has held four meetings. Interest in racing is very keen here and presages a big wind-up next month when the concluding Autumn meeting will be held, spread over four days.

Tsingtao is by some said to be the safest place in China and the one city unaffected by the war. The shipping public will hardly agree, however, as they are forced to pay the new likin tax, levied on all shipments over the railway. Although, there is no doubt, considerable revenue has accrued to the province through this agency, the earnings of the Kiao-Tsi Railway have showed a sharp decline. Shippers have devised measures to avoid using the railway. For instance the local slaughter house, instead of having its cattle shipments here in cattle cars, is employing mafoos to drive them over the country roads into the city.

OPPOSE TOBACCO TAX

The British-American Tobacco Company is determined not to buy a single pound of Shantung tobacco until the tax is abolished. This is likely to have a far-reaching effect on the prosperity of the province if the tax remains operative for a long time.

An announcement of interest to the hundreds who spend their annual vacation here was made last week when the management of the Grand Hotels, Inc., stated that a $300,000 addition will be made to the Strand Hotel, the hotel facing Strand Beach. The plans call for the building of a dancing pavilion and a thoroughly modern annex to contain seventy rooms. The dancing pavilion will be ready by the opening date next summer and the annex by the following year.

On Friday a ceremony at the Yamen and a reception at the Governor's residence marked the anniversary of the founding of the Republic. Thousands of school children paraded to the park in front of the yamen and participated in the exercises. Governor Kao En-hung and his entire staff were present in full uniform and the police, gendarmerie and military were present in large numbers.

GOVERNOR SPEAKKS

Following these exercises came the reception to the men of the foreign community. Governor Kao delivered an address and Consul-General Horinouchi, of Japan, replied on behalf of the Consular Body and the foreign residents.

The Governor voiced the hope that the world would bear with China while she was struggling to establish a strong republic, declaring that this was not the work of a day or a year.

A toast, proposed by the Governor, was drunk to the health of the President and the success and prosperity of the Republic.

The Ting An Bridge, connecting the west side with the main part of the city, was opened and dedicated on Saturday morning. The Governor delivered the dedicatory address and appropriate remarks were made by others. This is an improvement that will make its presence felt and greatly facilitate traffic to and from the west side.

The body of Mr. Senba, prominent Japanese resident and proprietor of a book store in Shantung Road, has been found among the hills back of the city. Mr. Senba is believed to have taken his own life by shooting himself through the head. He left his home a week ago and the same day his wife received a message from him saying that if he was not home by nightfall she would know that he was dead.

Sneeze Gas Halts Manila Stowaways

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Oct. 1.—Manila's fame up and down the China coast as a "fair weather" port for beachcombers, where stowing away on army transports has been easy, is passing.

Sneeze gas, furnished by the chemical warfare service of the Philippine department of the United States Army, is forced into the hold of every transport for a period of 24 hours just before departure and this makes that part of the ship uninhabitable.

Not a stowaway was found on the transport Thomas when she touched at China on her last trip. Previously it was not uncommon to find 15 or 20.
